Normal to Combination Skin

Understanding normal to combination skin...

Normal to combination skin is typically free of obvious issues but tends to be oily along the T-zone (nose, forehead, and chin) and dry on the cheeks, so we typically recommend products with dual functions.

If you have normal to combination skin, you probably:

- Wouldn't describe your skin as being oily or dry
- Find that the little bit of oiliness you do experience is rare and mostly in the t-zone
- Need hydration without heavy oils or pore-clogging ingredients
- Have pores that are not invisible, but they're not typically enlarged or obvious either
- Your skin tone is fairly even, with little to no brown or red spots
- Find that skin may occasionally look sluggish or lacking radiance
- Want to keep skin healthy and smooth
